GUIDE CONTENTS

This guide is divided into the following 4 sections

DIET

PRE-CLEANSE

MONITORING

DOSING

Additional information may apply and be added to this resource from time to time.

BX DIET

Starting your protocol begins by adjusting your diet to conform with the BX Protocol. Please consider the following:

Consider low animal proteins and dairy. If incorporating animal proteins make sure to keep the intestinal tract clean and free from fecal matter to avoid decomposition products.

Buy organic food—no pesticides, additives, preservatives, genetic modifications (GMOs), etc. Stay away from non-organic as much as possible.

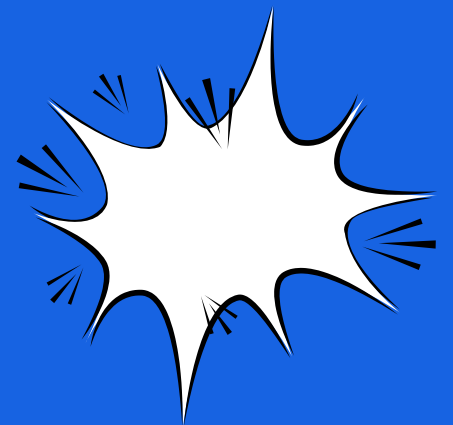

Drink one half your body weight in ounces of clean water daily.
Drink one fourth of your body weight in ounces of juice daily.

Your diet should consist of lots of healthy fats with an emphasis on medium chain triglycerides (like coconut oils).

The Energy Catalyst is a highly unstable energy compound which has the potential to be disrupted by a non-conforming diet. Keep the diet clean, avoiding all refined foods, such as white flour and sugar. Stay Oxygenated. Stay Alkaline. Keep the Colon Clean. It's as simple as that.

BX DIET...

Multiple dietary patterns work while on the protocol, including, but not limited to the following:

KETOGENIC

PALEO

MACROBIOTI

PRE-CLEANSE

The suggested pre-cleanse is one of many examples of an effective preparation for administration of the Energy Catalyst.

DAY

1

Begin the BX Diet

Begin at-home enema or professional colonic

2

Repeat at-home enema or professional colonic

Start the three-day juice cleanse

3

Repeat at-home enema or professional colonic

Continue the juice cleanse

4

Repeat at-home enema

Continue the juice cleanse until you begin the distilled water fast around 10 hours prior to administration

5

Repeat at-home enema

Upon waking, drink a glass or two of distilled water

Variations of this pre-cleanse can be performed from time to time.

DOSING

A standard dose for health optimization is 5 sprays daily under the tongue until a detox reaction occurs. In healthy individuals, a detox response will most often not occur. However, in cases where health may not be optimal, a detox response will most often occur. When the detox reaction occurs, the individual will stop the BX until they reach their normal baseline. Because the Energy Catalyst is catalytic, it is not uncommon for reactions to last for weeks and in some cases even months before additional administrations are required. The baseline is represented by the previous level of function.

EXAMPLE #1

SICK MARY

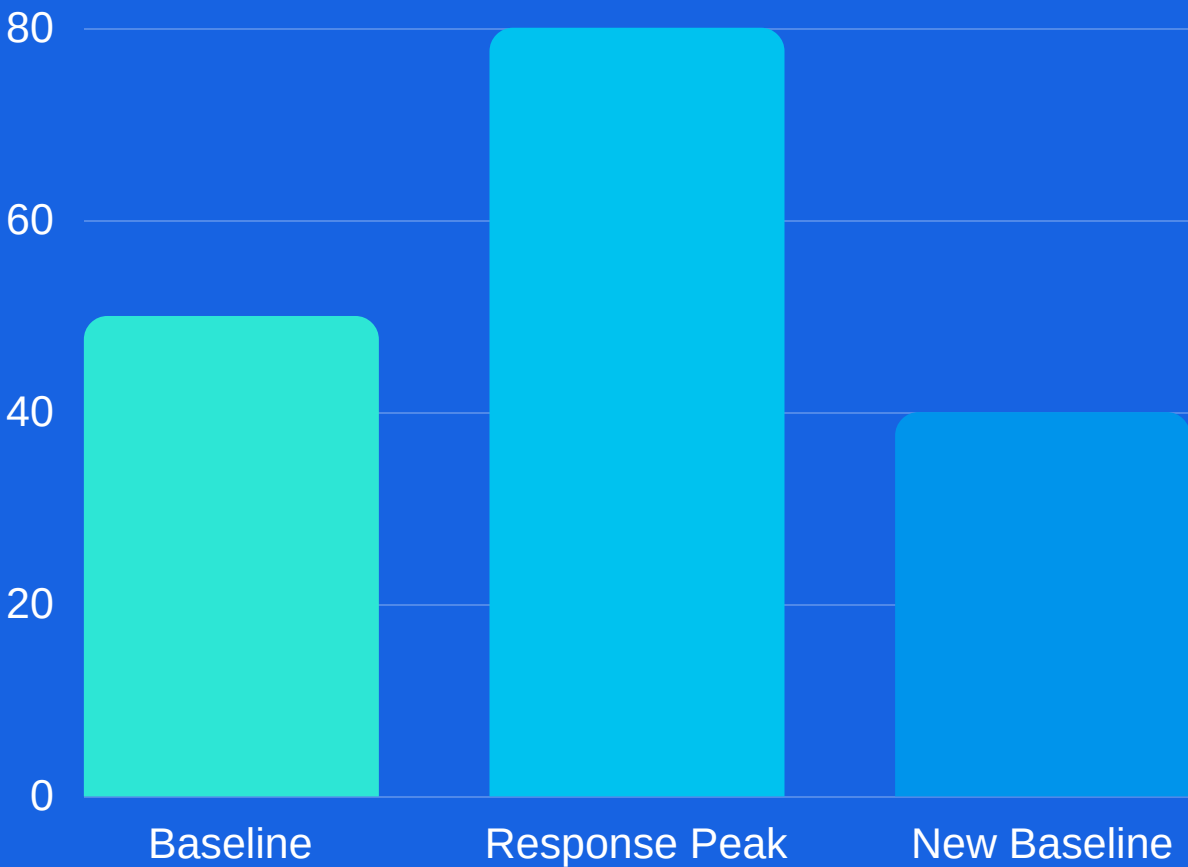

Under the following example Mary began treatment with her average symptoms/indicators at a level 5. She started with 5 sprays of the energy catalyst and by day 21 was experiencing a steady increase in detox or Herxheimer-like responses. She decided to push the Herx to a level that she feels comfortable with. At that point she suspended the use of the BX. She was surprised how long she was able to continue Herxing after stopping the BX. But she remembered that the BX is catalytic and can continue to work in the system for weeks and even months after suspension. By week 4 after suspension her numbers had fallen to a 4. This was one point lower than her starting baseline, so she decided it was time to hit it again. During treatment period 2, the same thing happened. This time however, she was only able to push the Herx to a 7. It subsequently fell to a 3. She repeated this process over the course of a year, slowly stair stepping DOWNWARD to optimal levels.

DOSING...

The important lessons learned with Sick Mary are twofold:

1. BX WORKS SLOWLY
2. BX IS CATALYTIC

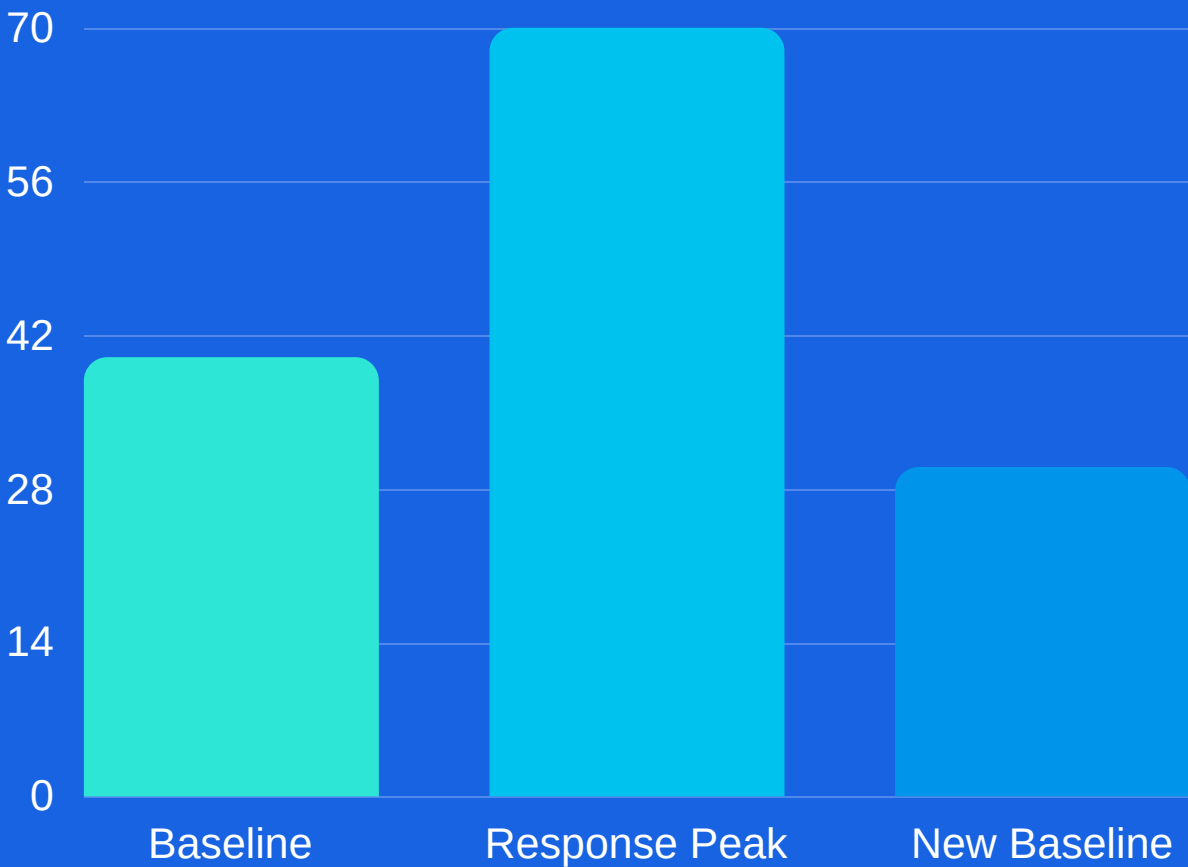

Mary's TREATMENT PERIOD 1 (6 weeks)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

DOSING...

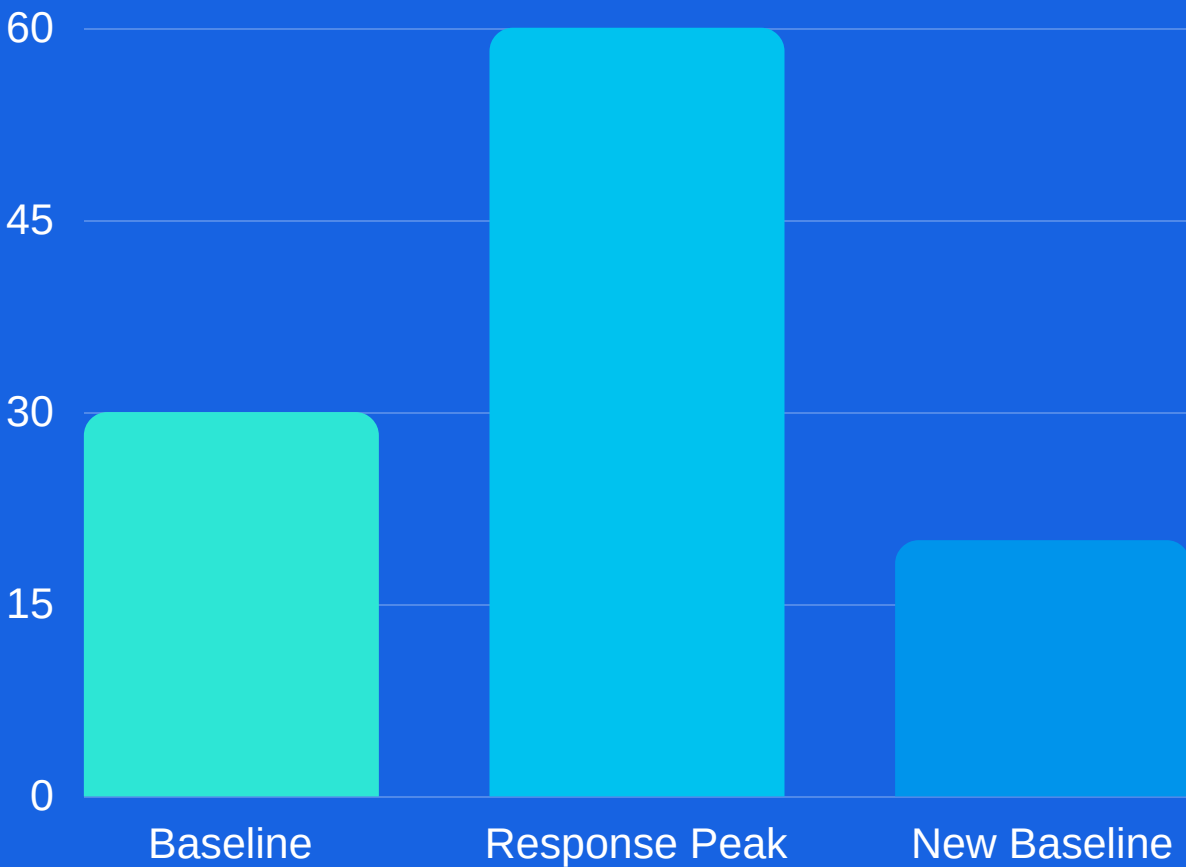

Mary's TREATMENT PERIOD 2 (3 months)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

DOSING...

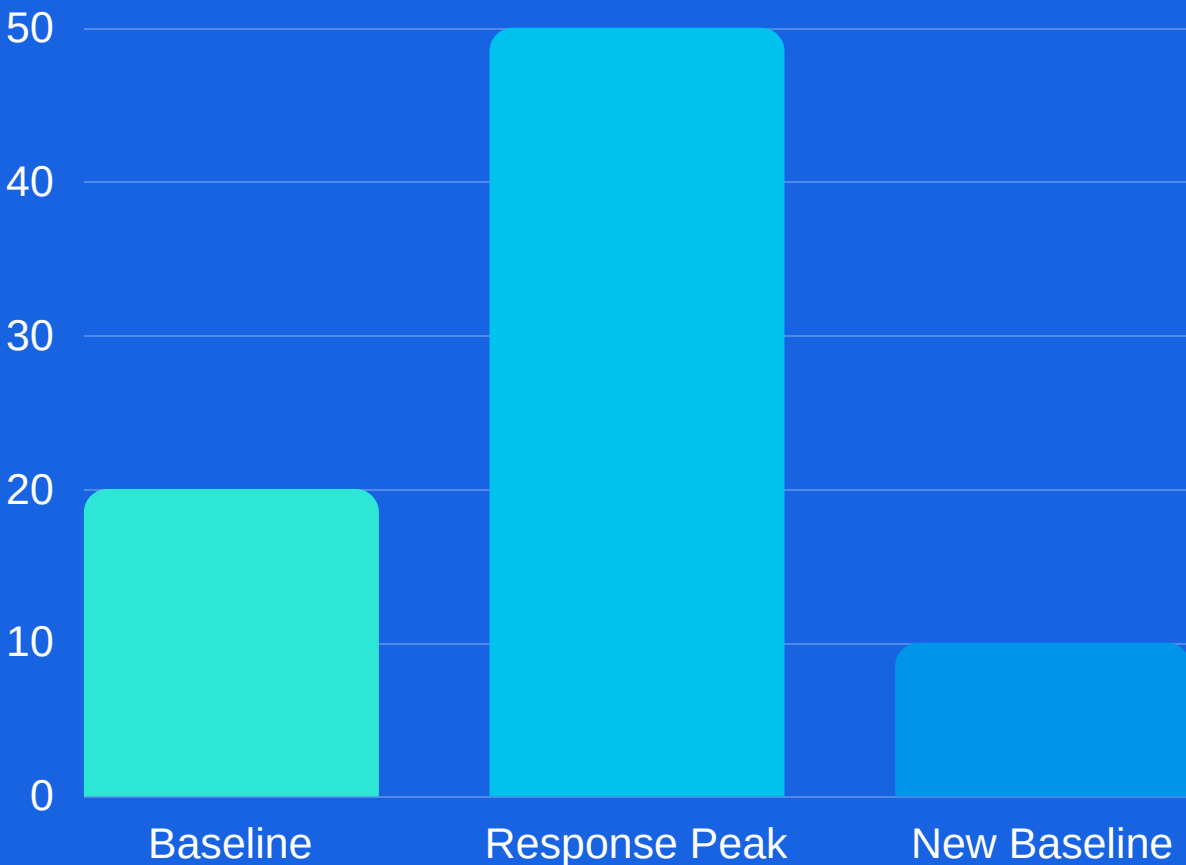

Mary's TREATMENT PERIOD 3 (6 months)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

DOSING...

Mary's TREATMENT PERIOD 4 (12 months)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

DOSING

EXAMPLE #1

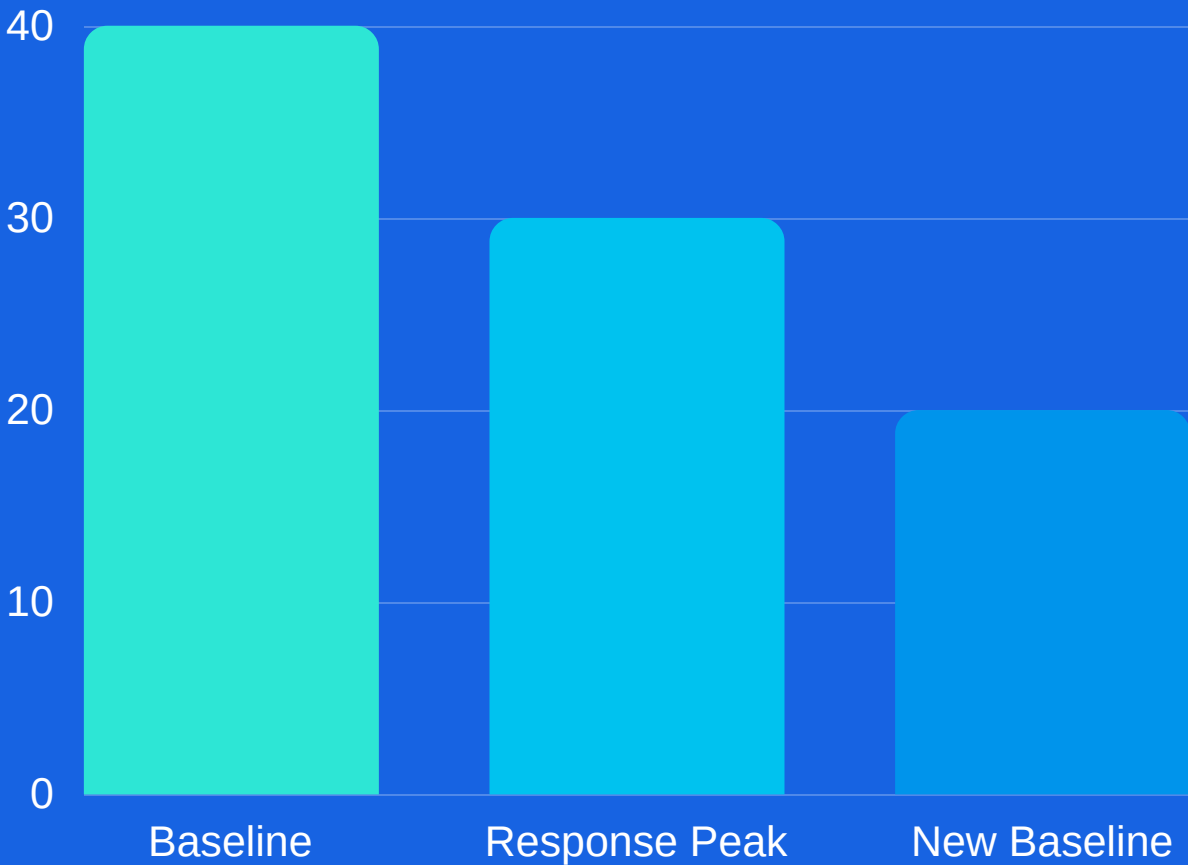

NORMAL HARRY

Harry is Mary's neighbor. He is surprised by Mary's response because he didn't notice anything except steady improvement in overall health and an increase in his endurance. He is a runner, and noted a 17% improvement in his respiration as measured by open respirometry at the local health club. As you can see, he had no Herx (largely because he has low microbial counts and few toxins in his system). Nevertheless, his increases in performance were substantial.

DOSING...

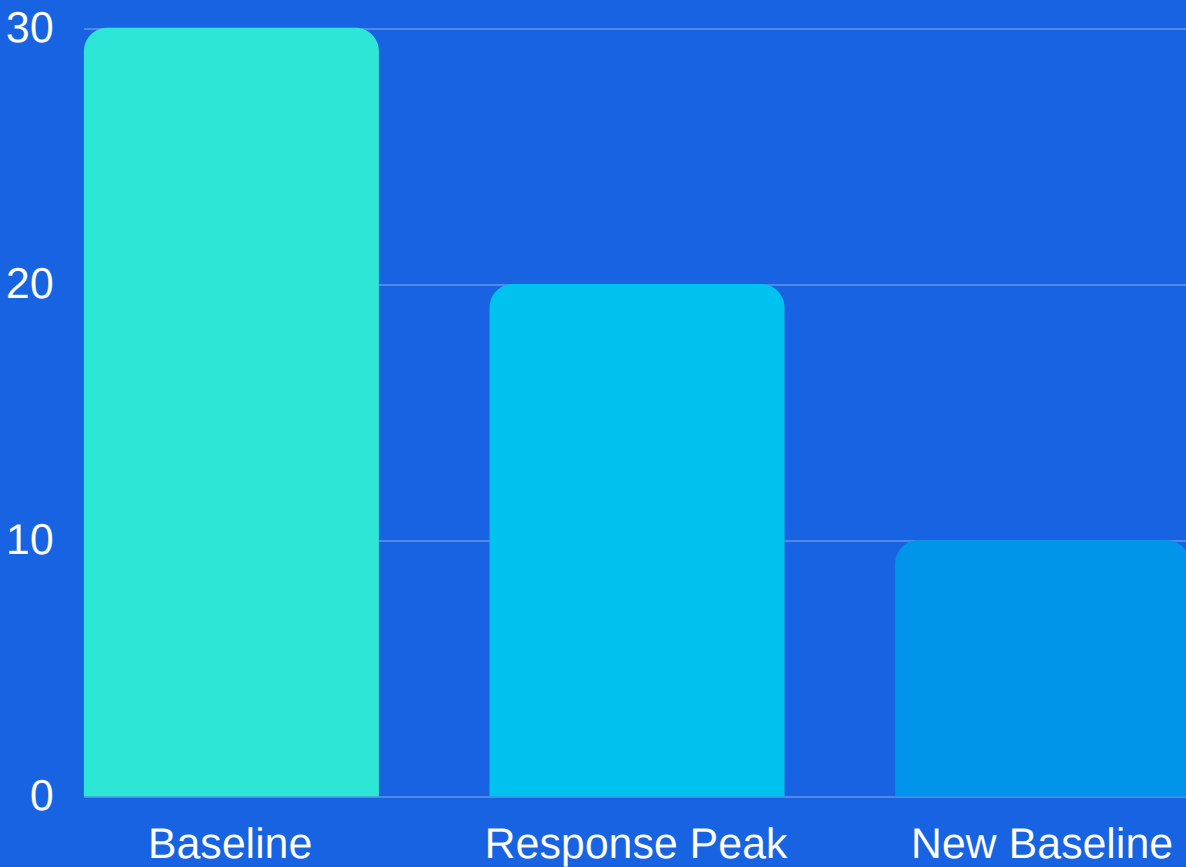

Harry's TREATMENT PERIOD 1 (6 weeks)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

DOSING...

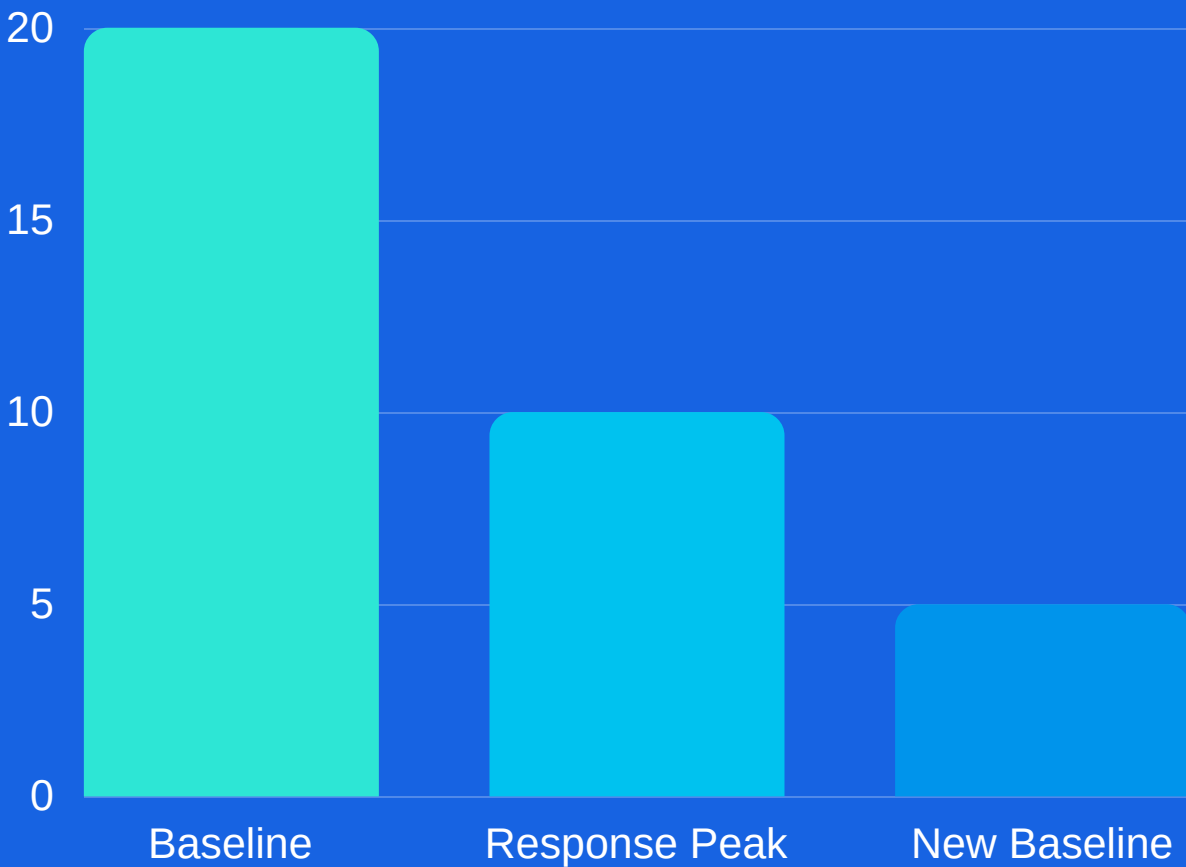

Harry's TREATMENT PERIOD 2 (3 months)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

DOSING...

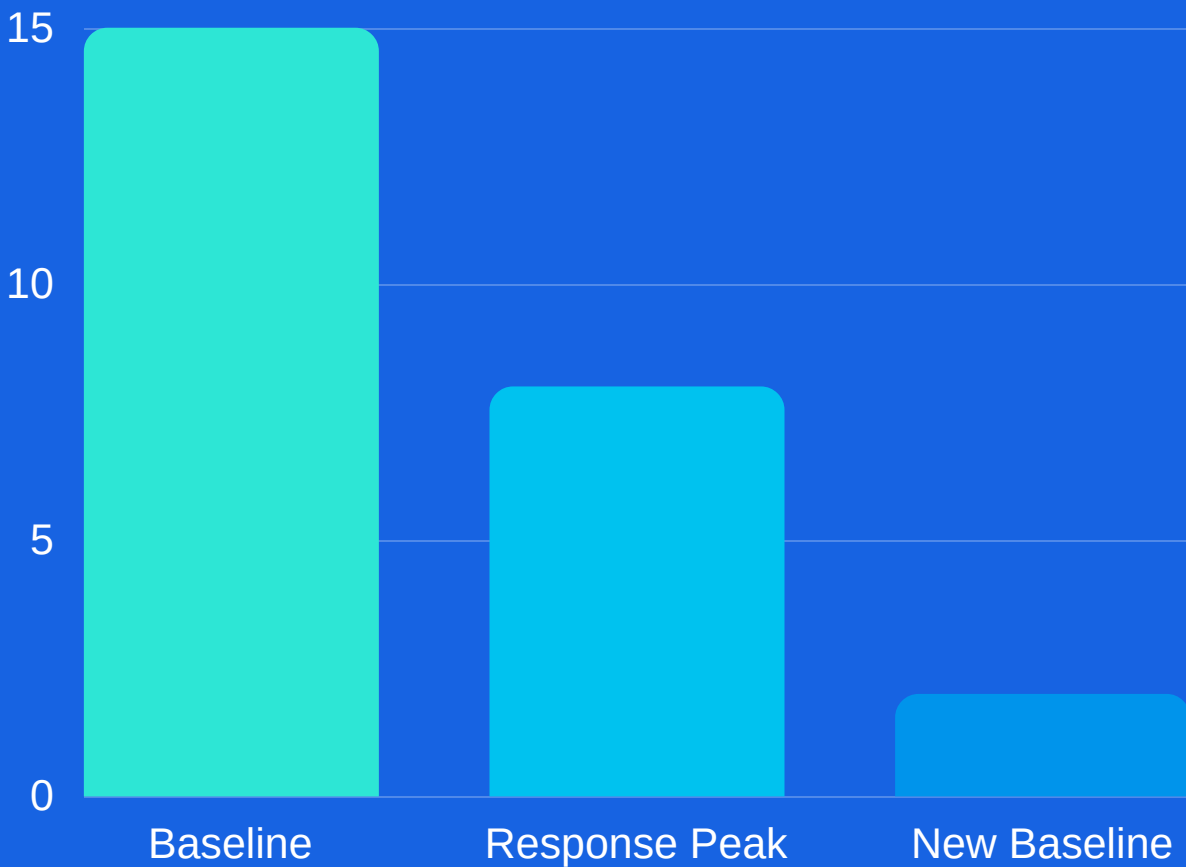

Harry's TREATMENT PERIOD 3 (6 months)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

DOSING...

Harry's TREATMENT PERIOD 4 (12 months)

An individual requiring medical oversight and support should consider enrolling in Delta's Health Restoration Home Program.

LEGAL DISCLOSURE

INTENDED USE

It is imperative that the terms “intended use” and “indication for use” are correctly interpreted and applied, given the diversity of health issues related to clients seeking health optimization and health restoration. For example, a potential client with Parkinson’s disease using a Delta-distributed private-label energy catalyst (i.e. X44™, B3L™, Xtole™, etc.), must understand and receive the disclosures related to the purposes for which the products are used in order for BXU, or Delta-Related Companies, to avoid misbranding violations. Regardless of what a client’s “undisclosed intentions” are, with regard to the use of a supplement for a specific purpose, we want to punctuate the importance in order to achieve long-term health and survivability as an organization.

For example, the BX Energy Catalyst, as a label-specific product, is only used in certain circumstances, such as Institutional Review Boards (IRBs), in relation to specific studies conducted at universities, or for other research purposes. In the event that BX is approved as a drug one day, that does not imply that the X44™ Energy Catalyst, for instance, can be used with the intention of treating cancer or other pathologies.

LABELING

BXU and Energenetix provides clients access to its products for general purposes under self-administration only. The important thing to understand is that labels have meaning. Not only from the standpoint of identity, contents, ingredients and disclosures, but from the perspective of intended use. For example, BX Energy Catalyst should generally be viewed as a general-purpose label. The BX Energy Catalyst is not a label that is used for instance in the U.S. or Australia. Each jurisdiction may have specific requirements regarding labeling. Know your labels and their respective intended uses.

BX PROTOCOL VS. BX ENERGY CATALYST

Clients will often comment on the use of the BX. A statement may include something like; “the BX has helped me...”. Clients should always try and differentiate between the BX Protocol™ and the BX Energy Catalyst, as the BX Protocol™ may include as many as 60 different components, including conventional therapies and third-party supplements or products. A BX Protocol for one individual may differ from a BX Protocol for another and is guided through individual case management and evaluation
